

Road Salt Working Group Report – March 4, 2025

The Salt Working Group has been reviewing the older salt card we distributed last year and maybe having more printed.

We are also looking into the possibility of creating a new approach to educating the public about ways to apply salt that are friendlier to the environment.

Conversations were had about exploring quantifying the cost of repairing infrastructure damage where salt played a role. The point being the myth that salt is the cheapest needs to be corrected and to place infrastructure damage as part of the overall conversation on the destructive side of road salt.
